- I’m Still Here (Austin Channing Brown)
- Whistling Vivaldi (Claude Steel) | Educate yourself! The first step is to work to understand and utilize resources about racial inequality and bias. Reject the desire to ask black and indigenous, or people of color (BIPOC) to explain racism for you. Instead, find resources created by BIPOC to help educate. Start reading about concepts like white privilege and racial bias. |
DISINTEGRATION
- “I feel bad for being white.”
- “I feel conflicted and stuck on what to do.”

How to move from this stage: start participating in anti-racist work.

Big caution for this stage: guilt can be overwhelming. Be aware that sitting in guilt or shame might move us to the reintegration stage.

Activities:
- Racial Bias Test - this will help you understand what your biases are for yourself
- White Fragility - short video summarizing the book by Robin DiAngelo

Videos:
- White Fragility - short video summarizing the book by Robin DiAngelo

REINTEGRATION
- “It’s not my fault I’m white.”
- “I have a black friend/child/relative, etc.”
- May notice yourself feeling defensive when talking about race.

How do folks move past this stage: combat feelings of defensiveness, shame or superiority.

Activities:
1. Look over the graph below and reflect on your past, current thoughts/beliefs, and implications of these convictions.

Podcasts:
- Side Effects of White Women Podcast Episode with Amanda Seales
- Smartest Person in the Room’s episode on Well Meaning White People

Articles:
- Remember that moving forward is important. It might be helpful to revisit some of the previous resources to help remind you of why this work is important.
- Find a way to support anti-racism. Some examples might include attending a training, joining an allies group, participating in a protest. Keep working to grow, instead of settling into shame.
Pseudo-Independence

- “How can I be white and anti-racist?”
- Belief that privilege is not based on merit, but on bias & racism.
- Rely on BIPOC to address racism.
- Might affirm or seek to comfort the BIPOC who is addressing racism.

Podcasts: Code Switch podcast A Decade on Watching Black People Die

Books:
- Ijeoma Oluo’s So You Want to Talk About Race
- Why I No Longer Talk to White People about Race by Reni Eddo-Loge
- The Fire This Time by Jesmyn Ward

Documentary (Netflix): 13th (Ava DuVernay)

Poem: White Privilege (Kyla Lacey)

Begin to engage in difficult conversations with White/non-BIPOC friends and family about racism and inequality. Begin to think about how you might use your privilege to support anti-racist work.

Immersion

- Begins to work against systems of oppression, rather than seeing racism as individual actions.
- Able to embrace own White identity & what their whiteness means, while also working alongside BIPOC.
- Able to actively engage in anti-racist activities.

Activities: Reflective Journal Prompts

1. Think about the country that you live in. What are some of the national racial stereotypes--spoken and unspoken, historic and modern--associated with Black women? Black men?
2. How do you see colorism at work in this country? How do you see colorism at work in your own prejudicial thoughts?
3. How have you expected Black women to serve or soothe you?
4. How have you reacted in the presence of Black women who are unapologetic in their confidence, self-expression, boundaries, and refusal to submit to the white gaze?

Podcasts:
- Still Processing episode on Kaepernick
- White Lies (NPR)

Articles:

Movies: The New Negro

Complete the journal prompts and consider completing some of the action items laid out in these resources.
AUTONOMY

- Embodied anti-racism: being willing to step in the way of racism when possible, engage in antiracist actions and pursue social justice.
- Has done the work to recognize their own identity, so that they can effectively be anti-racist.
- Recognizes that growth is continual, and they might need to revisit previous stages.
